

Citizens of Suja

Louise Samaritan

Louise was a single 32-year-old artist, specializing in large industrial pieces. She had just been discovered as was hoping to make art her full time job. She has been working as a shop teacher at Suja Secondary and also running an extra-curricular art club. Louise has recovered well from a recent car accident and saw it as a blessing in disguise but it allowed some time to focus on her art and the money to fund interesting projects. Louise is a coffee addict and often visits Second Chance coffee shop on her way to and from school.

Amelie Ampoulé

Amelie was a big city lawyer but has moved to small town Suja to give her precious son the best life possible. Although her husband still practices law, she has decided to focus on living well. She encourages her son's artistic endeavours and disagrees with Louise's lukewarm reception of her son's work. Amelie says that her son's work is like jazz: It's what you don't hear/see that is important. She wanted Louise to include her son in a Suja art exhibit. Interestingly, her son mentions that he'd rather be playing Halo – and his dad thinks it might be a better use of his time.

Danielle Didava

Danielle is a local newscaster who is hoping that Suja is the stepping-stone to a bigger career. She has been experimenting with her look lately and confesses that she uses Botox. Plus, she sometimes shared with Louise so she is worried that an old vial may out her secret. She denies any ill feelings towards Louise but you notice that she is always looking at Louise's ex-boyfriend, Kenneth.

Doris Burke

Doris has been having a rough time lately. She was in a car accident with Louise. Doris maintains that Louise hit her but ICBC found that the accident was due to Doris's behaviour. Not only was her car destroyed but she had her license revoked for unsafe driving and is now forced to cycle everywhere. Because she was hurt in the accident, she lost her business (local coffee shop) and is now delivering pizzas. Andrew St. Pierre, the neighbour that also died in the fire, ordered a lot of pizzas so Doris had to see Louise regularly. She gets red in the face just thinking about it.

Jamie Samtha

Jamie claims to be Louise's son. She did have a child 18 years ago and gave him up for adoption. Jamie is excited to have a mom who is semi-famous although he doesn't get her art. He admits that they recently fought because he wants Louise to pay for his education and she felt that was too much too soon. Jamie says that they were working it out and he is applying to private colleges in the US just in case. He credits his friendship with Will in giving him the courage to approach Louise as her son.

Kenneth Ross

Kenneth is a Suja police officer and does it to keep the peace. He says that he is glad that he doesn't get to carry a gun at work because he enjoys talking to everyone. He met Louise at the beach – the public beach because only rich snobs go to the public one, even though he could totally afford that. He mentions that he is sad that Louise is gone but he hadn't really been thinking about her since they broke up 2 months ago – in a totally mutual decision.

Mike Desperado

Mike works as a waiter at Second Chances. He got his shop teacher certificate two years ago and he can't believe that the school has hired this wanna-be artist instead of a qualified guy to teach the class. He thinks it is awful that being politically correct is more important than having the best guy in the job. When Louise was recovering from her car accident, he taught some of her classes and says that his reviews were much higher than hers. He works a split shift so he gets to serve coffee to the teachers before and after school. During the day, he is working on several inventions but won't share details until his patent arrives.

Vanessa Breezie

Vanessa is enjoying her new role of business woman. She bought the café from Doris and named it Second Chances. She is married to the history teacher at Suja Secondary and is convinced that Louise and her husband are having an affair. She doesn't believe that they like art enough to spend days at the museum. However, she maintains that she is a professional and treats the Louise as she deserves – as a valuable customer.

Will Feugo

A local Youth Care Counsellor, specializing in helping teens with addiction issues. He thinks that his past helps him identify and help teens more than some of the university-educated jerks that he has to follow at work. He thinks they are keeping him from advancement. In your record search, you note that he had a suspected history of arson and theft – but there is nothing in the last 3 years.
